But the seeds of Thompson's distancing himself from his family and then later his work as he aged were already in the making. What can be gleaned from the sparse record of his troubled birth, ironically made up of the testimony of the son who bore him? Born in 1910, Jim was the youngest of four children. His parents, John and Edith, moved from Missouri to Lawrence, Kansas in 1907. The couple, who became farmers, were wed in 1908. Jim's father, a stern man, was prone to bouts of temper and a drinking problem. He held down a series of odd jobs as a farmhand, an assistant in the local bank, a janitor and finally manager of a city garage. His firstborn child, Frank, arrived in 1911 and his next, John, in 1914. The next, John James, came in 1917, when the family was living in a new two-story house in downtown Lawrence. As a child, Jim joined his brothers and sisters in their games, but he wasn't as physically involved as his sisters were with him. They were all given to artistic pursuits—painting, drawing, sewing—and Jim was an unusually fastidious child who didn't have many friends. He grew up listening to the radio and reading newspapers, magazines and novels. The family adored show tunes and listened to them in the evenings on their Victrola. "Thompson enjoyed the harmonic quality of show tunes, and with his exceptional ear for rhythm, he developed a taste for them," writes Gene Gauntier in Jim Thompson: A Biography. His sister, Beverly, says he was a perfectionist with little regard for what others thought. In fact, if not for his need to 82157476af
